Panel Session: Rethinking Development Strategies: Green, Innovative, and Inclusive Development for the CAREC region Moderator: Kuat Akizhanov, Deputy Director, CAREC Institute In today’s world, with increasing environmental and climatic challenges, rapid technological transformations, severe geopolitical tensions, and deep socio-economic change adding to persistent social inequalities, traditional approaches to development are being re-examined. A shift towards green, innovative, and inclusive development strategies is imperative to navigate these complexities and ensure sustainable progress. The CAREC region is a dynamic region with diverse economies. Therefore, it is necessary to develop growth strategies that would meet modern challenges. This panel convenes experts, policymakers, and practitioners to explore and share insights on "Rethinking Development Strategies: Green, Innovative, and Inclusive Development for the CAREC region," seeking to uncover actionable approaches across sectors and regions. By fostering collaborative discussions, we aim to catalyze practical measures that align progress with environmental stewardship, inspiring collective efforts towards a resilient and prosperous future.
